Trust questions unanswered

By Ross Becker
Student Writer

On Sept. 15, 1969, SIU signed a lease with the SIU foundation for the use of the College View Dorm, 408 W. Mill St.

To enable the University to lease the dorm, the foundation had signed a lease with the Lois Land Trust for the use of the property.

In answer to a reporter's query, University officials admitted they had no clear understanding of who benefited from the $16,960 paid for each of the last five years as rental.

The foundation has funneled the $84,800 to the trust, without so much as deducting a penny for expenses for acting as intermediary.

Because of a loophole in Illinois law, neither University nor foundation officials were aware of who received the lease payments.

Illinois law does not require beneficiaries of land trusts to reveal themselves unless the property held is trust, leased, rented or sold to a state or local government, or a state agency, such as the University.

This law went into effect 15 days after the lease agreements for the dorm were signed.

But since the foundation, and not SIU, leases from the trust there is no requirement to furnish the names of the trust beneficiaries to the University. The foundation is not considered to be a state agency.

The University pays the salaries of all foundation employees. Many foundation employees work for both the foundation and the University. Many of the foundation's bills are paid by the University, but the foundation is not a state agency in the opinion of C. Richard Grunty, Board of Trustees legal counsel.

Grunty and John Huffman, University legal counsel, also feel that the intent of the law requiring disclosure of trust members when they receive revenue from the state has not been violated.

Two of the beneficiaries of the Lois Land Trust are Archie Griffin and his wife, Alice.

Alice Griffin is the secretary for the Board of Trustees. Archie Griffin is the Student Center business manager.

On Aug. 1 Archie Griffin paid a $3,612.34 property tax assessment at the Jackson County Assessor's office on The College View Dorm for 1973.

When contacted by a reporter for information about the Lois Land Trust, Griffin said he was an "officer and member" of the trust.

The next day, however, Griffin denied he was a member of the trust but said he was an officer. When queried about the duties of a trust officer, Griffin did not offer a clear answer.

It was then learned that on Sept. 15, 1966, Bernard H. Ross, a Carbondale certified public accountant, acting as trustee for the Lois Land Trust, had purchased the College View Dorm from the Griffins.

Ross declined to supply the details of the trust agreement or the names of its beneficiaries. He said if a letter was sent to him requesting the information, he would contact the beneficiaries to see if they would authorize release of their names.

When property is bought and sold in Illinois, a deed is required to be filed, in most instances, with the county clerk. This is not true, however, when a trust purchases property.

Instead of a deed, a document entitled "Memorandum of Agreement for Warranty Trust in Deed," was filed for the Lois Land Trust.

The memorandum stated that the terms of the trust agreement and the beneficiaries of the trust are not to be released, except with the approval of the trustee (Ross).

From a copy of a "Contract for Warranty Deed in Trust," located in the office of Stuart Robson, assistant University treasurer, it was learned that Robert E. Feigenbaum, president of Turco Manufacturing Co., DuQuoin, is listed as having sole beneficial rights to the Lois Land Trust.

However, all beneficial rights, according to Feigenbaum, were relinquished to the Griffins more than seven years ago, on Aug. 1, 1967.

When informed that his name was still listed in the trust agreement together with the foundation lease as having sole beneficial rights in the trust, Feigenbaum said, "I'm shocked." He could not explain his name being included as sole beneficiary, since the trust was

Fry vows police complaint hearings

By Dave Ibat
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If students allegedly "mishandled" by Carbondale police during recent downtown disturbances personally file complaints with City Manager Carroll Fry, an investigation will follow, Fry said Tuesday.

"I would be much happier and impressed with arguments against the (police) if the people making their complaints showed up here," Fry told student government representatives at a special Human Relations Commission meeting. "If you bring these people to my office, they'll be given a hearing with the police officers present," Fry said.

Some students with grievances have court cases pending. Charges against them stem from arrests at the disturbances, said Ingrid Gadoway, SIU Ombudsperson. "There's fear now that if they confront a police officer in a situation like that, there will be retaliation in court when police officers testify," she said.

Chairperson Elsie Speck called the meeting to discuss the incidents on Homecoming weekend and Halloween. Student Body President Dennis Sullivan, SIU Security Officer Virgil F. Trummer, city Police Chief George Kennedy, and Gadoway attended the meeting.

Fry explained the complaint procedure: after persons present a grievance to the city manager, the latter has two weeks to respond. He may choose to take disciplinary action against the policeman, Fry said.

If after two weeks he takes no action, and if the plaintiff is dissatisfied with the decision, he may take his complaint to the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners, Fry continued. The commission may call for a hearing and decide whether disciplinary action is appropriate, Fry said.

The Halloween incident involved SIU police, Trummer said. Students may voice complaints to Trummer, who said a hearing board would convene an investigation. The board would recommend a course of action to Trummer, he said.

"I think that this has been a good start, because we started off on sort of cordial grounds," Sullivan said. However, he added, "if we find we have an unresponsive administration, then we will be coming back with the position that we attempted to deal in a cordial, rational basis and failed. How we respond at that point in time depends on what we went through."

Fry criticized accusations of police mishandling. "To me, it sounded like the mewlings of a spoiled child who had been reprimanded," he said. If a student defies the law and gets arrested, "is that harassment?" Fry asked.

In closing the streets on three nights and conducting themselves the way they did, the city and police bent over backwards, Fry said. He said he had no objections to turning city streets into "public playgrounds" as long as other citizens were not inconvenienced.

Townpeople wanted the street open, students wanted it closed, and the city and police were caught in the middle, Fry pointed out.

Many persons think that by going through the crowd, "removing assumed leaders, taking them under a pretense of arrest to the station and letting them go," police "give the impression that people are being weeded out, rather than being arrested for a crime," said Harry Rubin, clinical psychologist at the SIU School of Medicine.

"Buzz" Talbot, SIU student and member of the Human Relations Commission, said that by giving detained persons a choice of signing waivers disclaiming future lawsuits for false arrest, or face charges, police intimidated persons.

Fry accused radio station WCIL of promoting a confrontation in its coverage of the Halloween disturbance, "and it fell flat on its face." After listening to WCIL's newscast the following morning, Fry said, "I instinctively went for my 30-year-old Jap rifle because I didn't know what happened."

30 AAUP chapters back call for collective bargaining laws

By Wes Christ
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A resolution in support of enabling legislation for collective bargaining by university teachers was passed unanimously last week by 30 Illinois chapters of the American Association of University Professors.

At its fall meeting Nov. 16 at the University of Illinois, the group heard and accepted the resolution which was presented by John Howie, president of the SIU-C chapter of the AAUP.

"I was pleasantly surprised at the fact that there was no opposition to the resolution," Howie said Tuesday.

"There were only a few minor revisions of wording before the resolution was passed unanimously. I had expected at least some token opposition, but there was none," he added.

"I think that says something for the state climate in terms of collective bargaining. Many states already have taken legal steps to back it and it may be that enabling legislation might be passed in the next session of the Illinois legislature," Howie said.

Howie said the group heard an address Saturday by Paul Stone, state representative from the 48th district, who said the new Democratic majority would look favorably upon such legislation.

"This is legislation which would legalize the steps in collective bargaining. Without this enabling legislation we could still take some actions to establish collective bargaining on campus but it would have to be approved by the Board of Trustees," Howie related.

"The enabling legislation sets guidelines for the establishment of collective bargaining situations. It is possible right now to have collective bargaining but without the legal

Police officials explain gun policies

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In some instances a citizen of the state of Illinois can use a gun quicker and with more justification than a SIU policeman.

According to Chapter 38 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, a person can use deadly force likely to cause death or great bodily harm to prevent the commission of a forcible felony.

Forcible felonies include treason, murder, voluntary manslaughter, rape, robbery, burglary, arson, kidnapping, aggravated battery.

Neither SIU or Carbondale police are supposed to use a gun on a felon fleeing from the scene unless it's to protect a life or prevent bodily harm.

An order governing SIU police states that warning shots will not be fired. City police also hold to this rule.

Of course, the compliance to this rule depends on the judgment of the police officer.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington says, "An officer has to view the situation, and make a split second decision which could take a man's life."

SIU officers receive instructions on when to use a handgun during their training.

"We don't fire warning shots, because it's dangerous to pop shots off into the air," Norrington said.

The last time a SIU police officer used a handgun was in a shootout with a militant group in November, 1970, when three campus officers were shot.

Norrington said a student has never been shot at or shot by a SIU police officer.

"Almost every officer has responded to calls concerning a man with a gun," Norrington said. "The potential for danger was there and we could not have affected the arrest with pulling a handgun."

"We believe that when a weapon is needed, which can only be used in a case where an individual has taken a life or threatening a life or bodily harm, then he should be stopped as quickly as possible."

This is one of the reasons Norrington said he feels the use of hollow point ammunition is justified.

"The hollow point carries more stopping power than a standard bullet or round ball."

Anytime an SIU police officer removes his weapon from a holster in the line of duty, he or she must write a complete report on the incident, Norrington said.

The last time Norrington said he pulled his weapon was when he stopped a possible armed robbery suspect.

"A subject fitting the description of the robber came out of the building. I ordered him to stop, saying I wanted to talk. When he rammed his right hand in his jacket and whirled towards me, I drew my weapon and ordered him to freeze. We found out later he wasn't the robber."

SIU police Lt. John Hale's last experience was similar. He pulled a gun on two subjects fitting the description of persons wanted for shooting a Carbondale policeman. They, too, weren't the right men.

Hale said, "The complaints against us (SIU police) on excessive use of force are far and few between."

SIU police can't shoot a fleeing felon either, unless they have reason to believe he or she is a menace to the community.

"If a man escapes from us that has a history of murder we probably can consider him a threat to life in the community," Norrington said.

Carbondale police can't shoot at a fleeing criminal either.

Director of Operations, Capt. Edward Hogan says, "If we are pursuing a stolen car, we can't shoot at the car or we couldn't shoot at a kid who has just broken into a parked car.

"But if we are aware of the violent conduct of the commission of a felony, we will pursue and use every effort to arrest," Hogan added.

Hogan says there must be a threat of violence or use of violence before Carbondale policemen can use a gun.

"If a guy puts a knife to a girl's throat and then rapes her, necessary force can be used if the man flees," he said.

Hogan admitted mistakes have been made by police officer and "innocent people have been shot but it doesn't happen too often."

Terrace tenants voice complaints

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Complaints about invasions of privacy and "God-almighty SIU trying to solve our problems" were heard in a special meeting of the Evergreen Terrace Council Monday night.

The council, representing the residents of the family housing complex, appointed two joint committees. One will investigate allegations of privacy invasions.

The other committee is to work with other campus groups—Student Senate, Graduate Student Council and the Student Tenant Union—on ways to stop the privacy violations that some residents claim have occurred.

One resident expressed concern over the number of people who have pass keys to the apartments.

Ray Flanagan, manager of Evergreen Terrace, noted there were 417 work orders from the housing complex to Physical Plant Maintenance in the last month. He said that to simplify entry to the apartments "the craftsman, plumbers and electricians making repairs have their own pass keys."

Bob Peacock, Terrace resident, cited a problem created by repairmen barging in on residents. He said he and his family was awakened one morning by the sound of a repairman using their toilet.

Peacock related another incident in which a mother who was breast-feeding her baby in a back bedroom of her apartment heard footsteps of someone who entered the home without knocking. He said she looked around the corner and saw a University repairman heading for her bathroom.

Morris Collier, chairman of the Evergreen Terrace Council, said, "Many of the University's administrators are former military men and they have applied the military logic where those below them become non-people with no rights."

"But," he said, reflecting on his own military service, "if such violations of rights had happened in the army, a congressman would have come in to investigate."

Carol Gambone, a Terrace resident, said, "For sometime, residents have been having their homes inspected by University maintenance personnel and then soon after received notices to get rid of illegal pets and appliances."

Gambone commented that many times people have not been home when inspections were made. She said she received an eviction notice because she had a dog and because of failure to pay rent on time.

"We had been behind on our rent before and we have always paid it up. It seems since I have started trying to form a tenants union out here that I have become the focus for inspections," she said.

Jim Barlow, Terrace resident and law student, suggested the forming of a special fund to hire a lawyer to defend residents' rights in court.

Dorm staffer beaten; two youths charged

Two Marion youths were arrested early Tuesday morning for assaulting a Mae Smith student resident advisor who told them to leave the building.

Arrested for aggravated assault are Phillip Smart, 19, and Charles W. Boyt, 19, both of Rt. 4, Marion.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said neither suspect was an SIU student.

Norrington said Student Resident Advisor Bruce A. Botts asked the two individuals to leave the tenth floor area of Mae Smith late Monday evening. Botts told police he thought the two suspects were trying to sell drugs.

Both individuals ran away from Botts and when he followed, they allegedly jumped the SRA and beat him up near Allen Hall, Norrington said.

Acting upon the information obtained from the two friends, police were able to arrest Smart and Boyt in the parking lot behind the Security Police headquarters.

Both Smart and Boyt were taken to the Jackson County jail. They were released Tuesday on $1,500 recognizance bonds.

Law keeps trust questions unanswered

organized so that he would share beneficial interests with his wife, Lois Feigenbaum.

Archie Griffin later verified Feigenbaum's statement that beneficial rights had been transferred to the Griffins. He also said that he and his wife are, at the present time, beneficiaries of the trust.

Griffin also stated that there are other beneficiaries of the trust, but declined to identify them.

On Nov. 8, through his secretary, Ross released the names of the beneficiaries.

According to Ross, Archie and Alice Griffin are the sole beneficiaries of the trust.

When asked to clarify the conflicting answers concerning the true beneficiaries of the trust, Griffin refused comment and said that anymore inquiries concerning the trust should be directed to Ross.

According to the lease agreement between the foundation and the trust, the foundation has an option to purchase the dorm for $145,000 at any time during the existence of the lease.

In addition, one half of all lease payments made to the trust can be applied towards the purchase price. The lease provides for a series of yearly extensions which would allow the University to occupy College View for six years.

At the present time, over $42,000 could be applied towards the purchase of the property.

The University has no plans, at this time, to vacate the dorm, according to David Grobe, coordinator at the Facilities Planning Office.

The foundation has no plans to purchase the building, according to Clyde Maulding, foundation treasurer.

Archie and Alice Griffin purchased College View from Paul Gray of West Frankfort in 1964. In the same year, according to Griffin, a new wing was added to the dorm. The dorm then accommodated 63 students, Griffin said.

On Aug. 30, 1966, the Lois Land Trust was organized for the purpose of acquiring College View Dorm and Ivy Hall, according to Feigenbaum.

Sixteen days later, Bernard Ross acting as trustee for the Lois Land Trust purchased College View and Ivy Hall for $350,000, according to the "Contract for Warranty Deed in Trust." Of this amount, $22,500 was a cash payment. Two mortgage payments, totaling $209,535.08 plus interest, were to be paid to the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Sparta. A $8,860.28 note was to be paid to the Herrin Security Bank.

After the initial payments, a balance of $109,629.75 was left. This was to be paid to the Griffins in monthly payments of $785.50 plus six per cent yearly interest.

College View, according to Robson, the assistant University treasurer, has been appraised for $175,440 by the First Federal Savings and Loan of Sparta.

College View is currently for sale. It has been offered to the Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity for approximately $85,000, according to Brad Baird, chairman of the fraternity's board of governors.

Fifteen thousand dollars of the sale price would be required as a cash payment. The remaining $70,000 is based upon the fraternity assuming the remaining 10 years of the mortgage of the building, Baird explained.

John Huffman is also legal counsel for the foundation. When asked why the foundation did not exercise its option to buy, Huffman, agreeing with Maulding and Robson, stated that the dorm did not fit into the University master plan because it is located north of Mill Street.

The University, by law, may not enter into any lease that will require appropriations for more than a one-year period. The foundation lease with the Lois Land Trust is for a six-year period but must be renewed yearly. In the event that the University does not receive state appropriations to cover the lease, it may be cancelled.

According to Huffman and Grunty the University can't deal directly with the trust because of the state appropriation law, even though the lease is renewable on a yearly basis.

Because of the fine legal line separating the University from the foundation, the Lois Land Trust has remained, until inquiries were made by a reporter, a secret organization receiving income from the University.

Serious questions still exist as to who the beneficiaries of the trust are. Are the Griffins two of a number of beneficiaries, as Archie Griffin claims? Or are they the only beneficiaries, as Bernard Ross, trustee of the Lois Land Trust states?

Could it be that University officials have been or are currently involved with the trust as beneficiaries, and thus receiving profits from rental fees paid by the University to the trust?

Because of the nature of the trust laws of Illinois, such questions about all the trusts with which the University has done business are left unanswered.

Panel probes new attorney program

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If a students' attorney program is set up at SIU, the lawyer will not be able to sue the University as originally hoped for by the Committee for a Students' Attorney, according to Forest "Rusty" Lightle, chairman of the committee.

In early October, Lightle said he believed the attorney program would only be effective if there was potential to sue the University.

The attorney committee is in the process of setting up a program so that students will have available free legal service.

Since Lightle's October statement, he has researched attorney programs at universities throughout the country, including Illinois schools. Lightle said that he has found the only way a successful program can be funded is by requiring a mandatory fee from students through student activity fees.

Lightle said state statutes prohibit the use of activity fees for such purposes as suing universities. Even though the funds are solicited from students, they are considered university funds, he said.

He said programs which have tried to obtain funds through a donation program have "floundered".

The University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana (U of I) is having difficulty with its program because it is funded through "volunteer student fees", he said.

He said the U of I has not been able to obtain enough funds through the volunteer system, "even though the school is big".

He said the U of I students are required to pay a fee each semester for the attorney program, but students may ask for a refund later in the year. The university takes about one third of the money for "processing costs."

He said because the attorney program must pay for the fund collecting procedure, this separates the program from the University. This enables the students' attorney to sue, Lightle said.

Lightle said Western Illinois University at Macomb (WIU) is also having problems.

In a telephone interview with WIU students' attorney, Tuesday, Larry Manning said he is quitting in a month because of the "unprofessional atmosphere."

He said that his files are in the student government office. He said the student government officials hold parties in its offices until 11 p.m. which he does not approve of.

Manning said he has complained to the various heads of student government because he is afraid that the people partying will go through the files and possibly leak confidential information.

He said another reason he is resigning is because of "student apathy." He said he has trouble getting students to help him on projects such as landlord problems.

Lightle said wants the committee to study the problems of these universities, so SIU's program can avoid them.

Lightle said Syracuse University in New York has one of the best programs in the country. He said he would like to see some of their ideas used at SIU. Some of the features of the features of the Syracuse program include publishing pamphlets on student arrest rights, how to use small claims courts and tenant-landlord relationships.

The program also handles consumer problems, divorce cases, and real estate ventures.

Lightle said that in order for a program to function efficiently the ombudsman office, the Student Tenant Union and the attorney's program "should all be in one complex."

AAUP chapters support collective bargaining call

guidelines a conservative board could vote it down even if 90 per cent of the faculty wanted it," Howie said.

"I think there is enabling legislation in Michigan that says when there is a 30 per cent show of interest by the faculty then an election will be held to decide if there will be collective bargaining on campus," he explained.

"Since we have some unions here for civil service and non-academic people, the faculty would vote here.

If you look at faculty raises over the past few years compared to non-academic raises you would see the general effectiveness of unions," he said.

"We could form collective bargaining right now without enabling legislation but it would be a whole lot easier with it. Right now the board can say 'We will not deal with you' and we would have no recourse other than a long court battle while, with a law, it could very possibly go the other way and the board would have to approve it," Howie said.

Howie said collective bargaining would provide for more inclusive contracts for instructors.

"The economic issue is not the overriding thing. You can negotiate for anything once you have a contract including the right to due process, academic freedom, equity treatment and faculty participation in the administration. You can negotiate for these things on a year-to-year basis with cost of living increase.

"These will be negotiated contracts and with them you have legal status. With these they cannot do the sort of thing like the firing of the 104," Howie said.

"I've heard it said that you can't put governance in these types of things but I've seen it done in other schools. I think it has something unique to offer faculty because it holds these non-academic assets dear," he added.

"The real test of any value structure is what you're willing to trade for what, so it really comes down to what sort of values and ranking you have," Howie said.

"Right now I'm mainly interested in getting the faculty to look up and think about collective bargaining. We are under AAUP censure right now and that is a forceful weapon but not nearly as forceful as a legal weapon. Now, for the first time, we have a chance to obtain that legal weapon," he related.

Judicial process snags conduct code committee

The Student Conduct Code Committee has run into a few snags in reviewing a final draft of the new student conduct code according to C. Thomas Busch, committee chairman.

"We got into a big hurry to complete our work on the new code and then we discovered some problems," Busch, an assistant dean of students, said Tuesday.

"There will be a delay relative to some problems we're having with the appointment process for judicial boards. We have formed a special committee with members of the Student Senate and the Graduate Student Council to get suggestions for appointing students to the judicial board," Busch related.

"We are trying to make the appointment process consistent all the way from the area levels to the judicial board and we want to make the constituency groups responsible for making appointments, thereby insuring student input," he added.

"I apologize for the delay," Busch said, "but I'm glad everyone on the committee feels we should go about this carefully and do it right."

S-Senate to consider parking

A bill recommending that the proposed parking lot in front of Faner Hall have flexible hours for students will go before the Student Senate meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom B.

Sen. David Sterns will introduce the bill, which recommends that half of the parking spaces be allocated to faculty and staff and half the spaces to students between the hours of 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The bill recommends that all the spaces after 5 p.m. be used for either blue or red sticker decals.

The purpose of the difference in times when students can use the lot is "there is a greater need for red sticker people to park in the garage for concerts after 5 p.m."

Minority policemen

In what can be viewed as a historic political move in Chicago, the Afro-American Patrolman's League renewed its request to a U.S. District Court judge in Washington, D.C., to cut off Chicago's federal revenue sharings until discrimination is ended in Chicago's Police Department.

Discrimination practices have long characterized the department. And, it's always been known that promotion procedures are racially biased. Black policemen hold a very small percentage in the department's hierarchy. The league hopes its request will force the department's head, James Rochford, to halt such practices. But Judge John Lewis in Washington seems reluctant to order a ruling because he feels the department will eventually construct a program similar to the city's fire department.

The fire department, early this fall, ended its discriminatory hiring practices by setting up a program designed to recruit a large number of minorities into the department.

However, the police department seems to believe that they have an adequate number of minority patrolmen. Last year, the department slightly increased (by a small percentage) its number of minority patrolmen. But, with the current wave of black-on-black crimes plaguing Chicago and other major cities across the nation, it is obvious that there is a need for an increase of black policemen in predominately black communities.

Renault Robinson, executive director of the league, believes crime in Chicago's black communities will decrease if more black policemen are put into them. In an interview with Chicago's Sun Times, Robinson stated that blacks "know the who, what and where causing crime in their communities but lack the authority to fight it."

If the police department is at all serious about lowering the crime rate, one good method to bring about a decrease in crime would be to hire more minority law enforcers.

Only by implementing an increase of black officers into black communities can the department hope to reduce the crime rate.

Rochford noted himself that what he calls "the yearlong freeze on hiring" has boosted crime. Rochford blames "the freeze" on the battle over racial discrimination in police jobs. As a consequence of the court-ordered freeze on hiring, no police have been hired since October, 1973.

The Treasury Department and the U.S. Office of Revenue Sharing haven't yet offered a reason why they've failed to intervene in the police department's discrimination practices. And U.S. District Court judges are "merely passing the buck" in attempting to end the practice.

Neither officials in Washington or Chicago have realized that with an increase of minorities on Chicago's police force the crime rate could be drastically reduced. Obviously, such an increase would provide police with the necessary tools needed to combat crime.

New York City and San Francisco are involved in similar suits. Both cities have a large black population, yet the number of black law enforcers is substantially low in proportion with population figures.

The only possible solution to the problem lies in a federal review of police departments in major cities across the nation. Such a review could provide data for restructuring hiring practices in police departments.

Duel on Elizabeth Street

Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Scene: Elizabeth Street, behind Communications Building and home of the illicit parking black market where students too poor or too stubborn park their cars without paying the University its pound of flesh.

Time: a typical morning shortly after 8 a.m.

Characters: Freddy Fenderbender and Bucky Bur-nout, both drivers of delapidated and unregistered cars.

Freddy is coming from one end of the street and Bucky from the other. Both are late for 8 a.m. classes.

"Hot dog," says Freddy, as he spies an open spot. He notes some persons have had to stand cars on end to fit them in the allotted space.

Bucky, coming from the other end, sees two guys from a Pontiac shoving two unoccupied, VW bugs out into the street. "Wow, it's going to be a cut-throat day," he thought.

Nursing his chugging '47 Studebaker along, Freddy comes to the open spot along the infamous street.

Just as he is about to pull in and while he is entertaining hopes of only missing the first 15 minutes of his class, he sees his arch rival glide into the spot in a recycled '54 Chevy.

Shots were fired. When the police investigated, they found both drivers looking more like puppy chow than like students. The report the police filed said Freddy and Bucky died of natural causes, which is probably true. A duel over the last parking place is natural causes on Elizabeth street.

Population control needed

The sad realities of hunger and starvation have plagued mankind throughout the ages. Despite efforts in recent times by the U.N. and other national and international organizations to increase food supplies, the problem persists.

Efforts to increase production and expand distribution are admirable, but doomed to failure. Such programs deal only with the effects and not the cause of the problem. Until governments throughout the world begin to provide effective population control education and devices, no progress can be made.

The concept of population control has long been the subject of bitter and heated controversy. Accusations of genocide, Orwellian visions of "birth taxes" or "baby permits" have been used as defenses by anti-population control groups.

The truth is that population control is one of the few means of salvation left for an overcrowded and dying planet.

Due to advances in technology, the Darwinian and Malthusian models of population control through natural means are obsolete. Life expectancy has been greatly increased, and wars, famine and natural disasters cannot be tolerated. The world's people must learn to cope responsibly with the necessities of curbing the birth rate.

Man by his very nature has certain adverse effects on the ecology. When the population increases, the problems inherent in man's survival increase in direct proportion. Overpopulation is largely responsible for pollution, food shortages, aggression and a host of other problems.

A 1972 study entitled, "A Blueprint for Survival," by a group of English scientists states that if all the world's food were distributed equally to all people, each person would have the minimum number of calories and not quite a sufficient amount of protein.

At any given time the world's food supply is finite. For the past 20 years food production has barely kept pace with population growth. Furthermore, specialists have expressed doubts that this production level can be maintained for more than another 25 years. Such estimates take no account of the possibility of crop failures or the collapse of world fisheries.

Many human activities, including agriculture, are harmful to the complex environmental life-support systems. Attempts to produce enough food to feed the world's population today could result in even lower production in the future. For example, by trying to feed five million people today, we may be able to feed only two million in the year 2000. Other facets of industrial society serve to further upset the balance, yet more industrialization is necessary to keep pace with population growth.

The world-wide birth rate today is 34 births per 1,000 people annually. At this rate the population will double itself in the next 35 years. Such an increase would strain world food producing capacity beyond all possible limits and result in widespread starvation and death.

Efforts should be made throughout the world to convince people that smaller families are good for the individuals and for society. People should be provided with information and access to the methods of contraception, and encouraged to use them. Abortion regulations should be liberalized and made accessible to the poor who are the ones who really need them most. Women should be encouraged to find fulfillment in roles other than childbearing.

People must be educated to respect the quality of life rather than the quantity of it. Our efforts should be dedicated toward achieving a world where no person is deprived of freedom from hunger and want for basic necessities.

Letters

Readers issue thanks to 'Jane'

To the Daily Egyptian:

Dear Jane:

After following your three-part series on rape and reading your letter which appeared on the editorial page Friday, I both sympathize and understand your position. You were out to help people, but as so often happens with good deeds, they get thrown right back in your face.

If you feel that no one appreciates it let me speak for myself. I truly did. I have often thought of the possibility (as should all women). It does happen. Latest statistics show one rape occurs every 10 minutes.

My biggest gripe, and I'm sure you will agree, is the humiliation a rape victim must go through to get a conviction. It is humiliating enough to report the offense, it is beyond humiliation to go into detail time and time again, not to mention how severely and merciless one's character is attacked in court. Surely some of this is needed to substantiate the accusation, but I fail to believe that any woman would put herself through the humiliation and personal agony if her complaint wasn't legitimate.

Your intentions were sincere, but I urge you to also turn your attentions to more pressing rape-related issues: revision of the rape-conviction code.

You have every right to feel disgusted by the lack of understanding and maturity in which most students handled your incident. But do understand that there are those who sympathize with you and what lies ahead.

Adree Sondag
Freshman

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to thank "Jane" for having the courage to risk further humiliation by letting the story of her rape be published. Her personal account of the experience should help men and women realize the seriousness of the crime. Only by bringing the realities of rape out into the open, as "Jane" has done, will rape victims cease to be persecuted by society.

Mechanics

To the Daily Egyptian:

From reading the article written about Kay Ingale and her knowledge of "car repair and basics," it is quite evident she doesn't even know the basics. If it is truly possible to learn "auto mechanics" on your own, then we, like others are surely wasting thousands of dollars-majoring in automotive technology.

Could she give a logical reason why eight cylinder and four cylinder cars cannot be jumped together?

If there are two kind of brakes—disc and hydraulic—then what are drum brakes, and how are disc brakes operated if not hydraulically? And if everything needed for a tune-up costs less than $12, then please tell us where we can get such a great deal on tune-up equipment such as, tack-dwells and timing lights!!

We don't know how much she values her life, but we would never trust our life to a car that had been worked on by the "average person." Anyone can change parts, but the whole idea behind repairing cars is to know why things go wrong, then repair them.

We are no male chauvinists, in fact, we must compliment her on her efforts to teach others the basics. We do wish she would learn the basics herself before trying to teach others.

To the Daily Egyptian:

Bravo Jane! I commend you for maintaining enough mental push to write a rebuttal to all laughs and snickers. If it is any help, this is just the average response of average people and not to be fretted over.

What you did twice—speak out against subjects pertinent to your being and other students—has much more importance than anything happening in the crowd. Actually when I read the rape series, the only joke was the write-up, not the information.

Your message is in the minds of every girl whether they acknowledge it or not. Be assured your experience will be pulled out of our memories if ever needed. Remember, the American population is more than foolish men and quiet women. You just have to look more for any other type.

To the Daily Egyptian:

Please print the letter below to "Jane", the rape victim, in answer to her letter addressed to Carbondale that was in Friday's paper.

Dear Jane:

I want you to know that my friends and I did not laugh as we read your story. We felt sympathy and concern for what you went through, and felt you handled the situation maturely. It took strength and courage for you to report the appalling incident to the police, and even more to report it to the public. Please don't let a few insensitive people make you sorry you told the story to the Daily Egyptian. We appreciate what you've tried to do and thank you for it.

Bode complaints

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to register a vigorous complaint about the lack of judgement shown by the editorial staff in permitting Gus Bode's tasteless comment in Nov. 14's D.E. Rape is not a laughing matter anywhere, let alone on this campus, and I do not think that it is in good taste to make snide remarks about it in a cheap attempt at humor. Surely the editorial staff of the D.E. and the author of Bode's usually humorous remarks can use a little more mature judgement in dealing with obviously sensitive subjects.

Tim Lyon
Graduate Student

To the Daily Egyptian:

Given the good quality of your reporting on what happens to a rape victim, it is very disappointing that Gus Bode still thinks rape is a joke, and that your editor had the poor taste to approve Gus' pun on the subject.

Letters to the Daily Egyptian

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Writers are requested to be concise and, in the event the subject has a time element, to bring letters to the Daily Egyptian newsroom as early in the day as possible. The editors reserve the right to condense letters to permit a larger variety of opinions, to correct minor typographical and grammatical errors, and to edit out material that is considered libelous or in bad taste. Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and accompanied by the full address and signature of the writer.

Claim PLO misrepresented

To the Daily Egyptian:

Your front page-on Thursday should convince those such as General Brown in the Pentagon that Jews do not control the newspapers. You showed a picture of Arab students protesting, and under it a caption which read "Zionist refusal to recognize the Palestinian people."

I don't know who wrote the caption, but their information is incorrect. It is the PLO and the Arab nations which for the last 26 years have refused to recognize the right of the Jewish nation to exist. Five-hundred thousand Arab Israelis are full citizens of Israel and have been so for 26 years. They vote in Israel's elections, enjoy her socialized medicine, and some like the DRUZE even serve in the army.

Jews living under Arab rule, on the other hand, suffer a far different fate. "National Geographic Magazine," for the first time in 86 years, had a special editorial on the cruel fate of Syrian Jews. In Libya, where a convicted thief's hand is cut off by law, Jews and Christians suffer discrimination. In Saudi Arabia, no non-Moslem houses of worship are allowed to be built. One fears to think what life would be like for non-Moslems in a "democratic" state run by the Arab terrorists.

Rabbi Earl Vinecour

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am writing to protest the front-page coverage given to supporters of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). To give such coverage only adds credence to an incredible platform, one which calls for the dismantling of the State of Israel, and one which has already led to the murders of innocent civilians on all sides of the Middle East Conflict. One may as well give credence to the claims of Murder, Incorporated, for that is all that the PLO has been so far; an international version of that. One must remember that 20 out of 16 or 17 thousand students is not much support either, and that we must be careful not to be swayed by the claims of these murderers merely because their supporters are vocal. I am not opposed to the self-determination of peoples in the Middle East, but I am violently opposed to the destruction of the State of Israel, and the theft of its people's self-determination.

Less violent control needed

To the Daily Egyptian:

We are members of the Carbondale Peace Center (CPC) and wish to express our concern over the recent decision to use the hollow point bullets by the police agencies in our community. As was mentioned in an article of the DE (Nov. 15), and unknown to most people, the Hague Conference is 1899 prohibited use of such bullets for international warfare. Such legislation and world conferences are an attempt to "humanize" mankind, since we seem to have lost our self-respect, by resorting to war and violence as solutions to conflicts.

The CPC asks that resorting to such methods as exhibited by the police's use of these type bullets, be replaced by more humane methods of dealing with street violence. There are many new social-oriented programs available to communities in helping to combat crime without further endangering its citizens. Although we acknowledge the efforts of our police departments, we ask that they find other less violent means of dealing with local crime.

We also plead with the local citizens to express their concern and demand that these "dum-dum" bullets be removed from the law-enforcement agencies. We should realize that all criminals are no less human than the rest of us. Neither their deaths nor such expressed violence will remove the social ills that plague our society. We have no need for more violence in our society and much less for "dum-dum" bullets.

Mitchell fans

To the Daily Egyptian:

Some relatively uninformed bozo broadcasting on the "Just Plain Folk" show on WSUI about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10, utterly outraged our sensibilities with the comment that the song that "made Joni Mitchell somebody more than David Crosby's girlfriend" was "Blue" on her album of the same name.

For his information, "Songs to a Seagull," "Clouds" and "Ladies of the Canyon" were all released before "Blue," and Joni Mitchell was a hell of a lot more than Crosby's girlfriend to a fairly large and admiring audience. Man, no wonder nobody with any taste listens to WSUI!

Ban dum-dums

To the Daily Egyptian:

If the Ohio National Guard had used dum-dum bullets at Kent State, maybe 13 students would have been killed instead of four. Who knows how many would have died at Attica Prison if hollow point slugs had been used.

The expanding bullets have been banned in war, yet they are increasingly being made available for use against our own citizens. If I were hit by a stray police bullet, I sure wouldn't want it to be a dum-dum. This type of bullet should be removed from the hands of the real "dum-dums"—the people who use them.

'Calm Down Mother' explores varied roles

By Deborah Singer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Positive women doing positive things for their "sisters" was the theme for the women in arts and literature portion of "The Evolving Woman" conference.

It was emphasized in the play, "Calm Down Mother" directed by Phyllis Jane Wagner, and by the panel discussion that followed.

The play was shown Friday at 2 p.m. in the Illinois Room of the Student Center. There were many men included among the largely feminist turnout, and the feeling of unity between the audience and actresses in the play was audible. One of the actresses remarked that she felt everyone in the audience was really in tune with her during the performance.

The play was written in 1963 by feminist playwright Megan Terry, and although it was just as relevant then, it is probably more involved with the women's movement of today. Material which would have been shocking in the 60s was easily related to by Friday's audience.

This was due in part, to the intimacy and rapport established by the three women cast of "Calm Down Mother." Using a cross between confrontational and presentational theater, the women had to relate to the audience as both themselves, and a series of different characters.

Wagner, associate professor in the theater department, said the play is termed a transformation piece due to its structure which involves the use of abstract transitions. Katie Hollis, Lynn Myers and Cindy Schramm, the three actresses called upon to play a variety of characters ranging from old women living in a mental institution to three prostitutes and the fully developed relationship which exists between them.

Among the variety of women's roles the play questions, it becomes apparent that this is something that could have only been written by a woman for other women. But under Wagner's direction, the subtle emotional levels that Terry's play explores were responded to irregardless of gender.

The panel discussion that followed included Wagner, Judy Little, assistant professor in the English department, and Sylvia Greenfield, assistant professor in the art department.

The image of women in negative roles is the major problem with most of the art being created by feminists, the panel members agreed. The only area in which women are positively aspected in literature are in biographies, said Little. Other than that she explained, women have usually been ascribed to negative roles throughout the history of literature.

Greenfield said the same problem is true for women in her field.

"Women in academia, especially in studio areas (of art) have a hard time," Greenfield explained. She said the main problem is that there aren't very many women in the studio areas, but that it is getting better.

Myers, one of the actors in the Terry play, remarked that the roles for women in theater are limiting. She said she would naturally like to play only strong, positive women, but if she waited for those roles, she would probably get to act only once every five years.

But the situation does seem to be changing these women agreed, and the work coming from feminists, as well as others in the arts, will hopefully reflect positive images of women. They said art stemming from the feminist movement should not be reactionary, but that it should be art created by women who understand themselves and their strengths.

Exhibit features works of faculty

An exhibit of recent studio work by School of Art faculty members will be in the Mitchell Gallery Wednesday through Dec. 10.

Two contributors to the show, Thomas Walsh and Bill Boysen, have recently returned from sab-batical. The works they are showing reflect the artistic innovations they developed while overseas.

Thomas Walsh, sculptor and associate professor of art, spent the past two years in Rome. During the second year Walsh was awarded the Prix de Rome and subsequently spent a year at the American Academy in Rome.

At the academy, Walsh was one of 28 artists who were given studio space and a cash stipend. Walsh said he had no teaching assignments or administrative paper work at the academy. Instead, he was free to devote all of his time to his sculpture.

In the faculty show Walsh will have two drawings and a bronze relief he did while in Rome. Walsh primarily does non-representational sculpture cast in bronze. The ideas behind his work tend to be autobiographical he said.

Walsh said the time spent at the academy influenced his entire approach to sculpting. "However, it will be about three or four years before I sort out and pinpoint all the influences the academy had on my work," Walsh said.

Since returning, Walsh has spent more time on individual works. He plans to devote an entire year to one or two larger pieces every year.

Walsh said he was inspired by seeing first-hand the work of the Renaissance sculptors Cellini and Bologna. The nuances of detail in their work are only visible close up, Walsh said.

Bill Boysen, glassblower and assistant professor of art, spent last spring and summer in Australia. At the request of the Australian Council for the Arts, Boysen set up a mobile glassblowing studio like the one he built at SIU.

Boysen is exhibiting a squadron of glass flying saucers at the faculty show. The saucers have futuristic details including landing gear, pilots cabin and vertical stabilizer all blown in glass.

The flying saucers were derived from a disk formation Boysen began blowing while in Australia.

The annual School of Art faculty show contains work by 19 teachers in such studio areas as sculpture, painting, drawing, weaving, etching and jewelry.

The show opens Wednesday night with a public reception from 7 to 9 p.m.

Students' International Meditation Society Presents a free Introductory Lecture on

Transcendental Meditation

Transcendental Meditation is a simple mental technique which provides profound rest and relaxation and allows the system to rid itself of deeply-rooted stress, tension, and fatigue which otherwise accumulate and obstruct the effective functioning of mind and body. After meditation, the individual re-enters activity, refreshed, relaxed and revitalized.

The lecture will be given by a special guest speaker at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday, November 20 at Morris Library Auditorium.

Lindfors ends show with open dialogue

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

After receiving two standing ovations for her portrayal of 42 women in "I Am A Woman" Saturday night, actress Viveca Lindfors returned to the stage for a frank open dialogue session with the audience.

No longer in costume and looking much more comfortable, Lindfors sat on the edge of the stage with microphone in hand and discussed the origins of "I Am A Woman."

"I Am A Woman" came about because of my own dilemma as both a woman and an actress," Lindfors said in a voice that still retains evidence of her Swedish origins.

Lindfors explained that five years ago, at age 49, her fourth marriage ended. She said this left her feeling abandoned and she found herself wondering, "Am I worth something if the man leaves me?"

At age 49, Lindfors was also an actress who had starred in more than 100 films and plays, and was soon discovering that roles offered to actresses her age were usually "insults." Time was beginning to run out, said Lindfors who was tired of wasting time with "silly" television roles.

"I thought to myself, 'If I don't do all the parts I still want to do soon, it will be too late.' There were just too

One woman program explores being human

many things I wanted to do," she explained.

Feeling a strong need to understand herself, she returned to analysis, she said. Shortly, she began to conceive the idea of "I Am A Woman" as an answer to her dilemma. Along with director Paul Austin, Lindfors said she spent six months gathering and reading material for the show.

In putting the show together, she said they steered away from the idea of a "one-woman show."

"People seem to have freaky, preconceived ideas of what a 'lone-woman show' is—an elderly lady wearing flowing gowns and reading poetry in flowing gowns," Lindfors said.

At the same time, a women's movement had also begun in the United States, a circumstance Lindfors describes as "one of those fluky coincidences. I wanted very much understand myself in relationship to the women's movement. The movement has been what I have fed the movement."

Lindfors emphasized that women should not be forced to choose between being either an "active" woman or a "loving" woman, but the two should be allowed to exist as one. Her show, she explained, is not really so much about being a woman as it is about being human.

"I Am A Woman" is also an outlet for Lindfors' feelings towards the peace movement, she said. In the show, she portrays a 13-year-old girl giving testimony at the 1968 Paris Peace Conference. The girl described American Soldiers who dropped poisonous snakes into her girlfriend's knotted pajama bottoms in order to get information from them.

Lindfors said she attended the conference, recorded the girl's testimony, and having been deeply moved by it decided to use it in the show.

"I didn't want to waste time working on peace committees and such. I wanted to do something through my work," she said.

Lindfors said her future plans include making a record, writing an introduction for the soon-to-be published "I Am A Woman," touring the show for six weeks in Sweden and finally making a videotape of a performance. She would also like to do a production similar to "I Am A Woman" with her actor-son Christopher Tabori, to be titled "My Mother, My Son."

"I also want to play some more of the great dramatic roles, particularly in Greek theater. I'd like to do Lady Macbeth. We all have some of her in us," she laughed.

Despite repeated encouragements from her stage people to end the session and leave, Lindfors continued answering questions until there were no more. Backstage she received more compliments over coffee and punch, and then finally departed to bring her journey of "one woman and many women" to another audience.

Nation asked to fast for a 'world harvest'

Thursday's nation-wide "Fast for a World Harvest" is an invitation for well-fed Americans to share the hunger that is the daily experience of one billion of the Earth's people, according to Peter Strawn, Carbondale coordinator for the fast.

Strawn, a member of the Ananda Marga Society, said "Fast for a World Harvest" will be nationally observed by colleges, churches, high schools, community organizations and individuals who feel that a more equitable distribution of the world's resources is needed.

The fast was organized by Oxfam-America, which also sponsors several on-going humanitarian programs. The organization is attempting to raise money to help small farmers in Asia, Africa and Latin America grow more food to better support the undernourished masses. Participants in the fast are asked to donate the price of the foregone meals for this purpose, Strawn said.

He said donations may be sent to Ananda Marga, 401 W. Elm, Carbondale, or Oxfam-America, 302 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass., 02116.

The Fast will also direct national attention to the critical global food shortage. Drought, floods, and fertilizer shortages have reduced farm yields in many parts of the world, Strawn said. Increasing population in the developing countries and dietary changes in affluent nations are compounding food shortages, he added.

The average American now requires almost a ton of grain a year (much of it to feed animals for meat), Strawn said, while the average Bengali is lucky to receive the equivalent of a pound of grain a day. He said implications for the future are particularly grim for children, whose growth and mental development are seriously and permanently impaired by malnutrition.

"Fast for a World Harvest" is co-sponsored by Oxfam-America and Project Relief. Individual sponsors include William F. Buckley, Jr., Lester Brown, Rep. Robert F. Drinan, Hubert H. Humphrey, Mike Mansfield, Gloria Steinam, and Margaret Mead.

Further information concerning the fast may be obtained from Strawn by phoning 549-6642.

Conference unifies women

By Joanne Reuter
Student Writer

The three-day "Evolving Woman" conference at the Student Center served as a springboard for future cooperation among women's groups in Carbondale, according to Noel Kumins, Feminist Action Coalition (FAC) chairperson and conference coordinator.

Participation of faculty, students, administrative employees and townspeople have sewn the seeds of a women's network, Kumins said.

Visitors from other areas of Illinois and Missouri volunteered to serve as interstate contacts in a communication network among women's groups throughout the midwest, Kumins continued.

Although about 1,200 persons attended the conferences on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Kumins would have liked to see more.

"I won't be satisfied until everyone comes," she said. "I would also have liked to see more men."

The possibility of an annual women's conference is being considered, Kumins said, but the amount of work put into the program is a problem. Kumins explained that she worked about 90 hours a week, and her assistants about 45 hours a week in preparing the program.

The conference was totally a result of student work, according to Ginny Britton, staff assistant at Women's Programs.

"I have worked with a lot of students, not just women, and this effort far exceeded any others I've seen," she said.

Cleothus Hudson and Kiomi Harvey play among their artwork, now on display in a multi-media exhibit in Allyn Gallery. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

Multi-media exhibit scheduled in Allyn

Two artists, Kiomi Harvey and Cleothus Hudson, have scheduled a multi-media exhibit in the Allyn Gallery Wednesday through Nov. 26.

Harvey, a senior from Puerto Rico, is a studio art major specializing in sculpture. She will display a sculptured mask and silver jewelry rings along with three dimensional wood and metal sculpture.

Hudson will also show abstract drawings and paintings done by the grid method. In this method the surface of the painting or drawing is divided into squares and a different image is rendered in each one.

Hudson, a senior from Harvey, Ill., is majoring in art education. He will exhibit cement sculptures, aluminum castings and a raised copper vase.

The Allyn Gallery is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The U.S. National Field Hockey Tournament will be held Nov. 27-Dec. 1 at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb.

Last weekend the Midwest Selection Tournament was held at Cedar Falls, Iowa, to select teams to compete at the national tournament.

Several players from the Midwest College South teams were selected to the Midwest division teams. The Midwest College South division is composed of nine colleges from Illinois and Indiana.

Pat Matreci of SIU wasn't selected to any of the three Midwest teams, but was one of four players to receive a scholarship to a summer hockey camp of her choice. The scholarship is for half of the total cost for enrollment in the hockey camp.

A proposal for the dismemberment of the Midwest College

South will be resolved at the National Tournament meetings. The proposal calls for the abolition of the selection tournament at the close of the college season.

The selection tournament would be replaced by a state tournament, with the winner advancing to a regional tournament. The regional winner would then go to the national tournament.

Volleyball

By Pat Matreci
Student Writer

The SIU women's volleyball team traveled to Western Illinois University last week to compete in the State Volleyball Tournament. They returned the seventh best team in the state. Only the top three colleges are eligible to compete in the regional tournament next weekend, so the Salukis' season is over.

The fifth seeded Salukis opened play with a match win over DePaul in two straight games, 15-7 and 15-6. Southern also defeated Quincy College in two straight games, 15-5 and 15-9. They ran into trouble against the University of Illinois, losing the match in two straight, 15-4 and 15-5. Northeastern also beat the Salukis in two straight, 15-4 and 15-8.

Playoffs were set up for the first four teams, so SIU concluded a winning season for Coach JoAnne Thorpe. Their record for twenty-eight games is 18-10.

Southern's second team also compiled a winning record this season. The back-up squad completed play last weekend, their record for seventeen games was 10-7. Most of the players from both squads will be back next season, so another winning season may be in store for the volleyball teams.

Tenth place finish completes season

By Pat Matreci
Student Writer

The SIU women's cross country squad completed its season Saturday with a 10th place finish at the National Invitational Cross Country Meet held in Ames, Iowa.

Iowa State took first place. Southern's top finisher was Anne McRae, placing 23rd with a time at 16:19 over the two and one-half mile course. Other SIU runners finishing farther back were: Jean Ohly, 26th, Peggy Evans, 36th, Chris Muszynski, 67th, Kathie Andrews, 80th, and Laupa Morrison, 84th.

A summary of coach Claudia Blackman's team record this past season shows success, despite an attack of the flu, which put several runners on the sidelines for a few meets. The Salukis recorded two first place finishes, three second place finishes and a tenth place finish.

IM Trophy Night

Several women's intramural teams have won championships this fall, but none of them have been officially crowned as such.

Wednesday evening at 7:00 has been designated "Trophy Night" and all winners of fall sports will be presented with their trophies and will also have their pictures taken.

"We thought it would be a lot nicer to have all the winners receive their trophies at one time," Jean Paratore, coordinator of Women's Intramurals said.

"We also want to have pictures taken of everyone and thought it would be cheaper to have the photo service come just one time instead of several different times."

This is the first time trophies are being awarded in this group manner. Paratore said, "I think it is a good idea. There should be a trophy night at the end of every semester."

Some of the people receiving awards Wednesday will be Lewis Park, champions of the Monday night Volleyball league and Baldwin II winners of the Thursday night league and Rist's Team, winners of flag football. Trophies will also be awarded to winners of the singles and doubles tennis and badminton tournaments.

Saluki basketball games to air on local stations

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Saluki basketball will be aired locally, although some details remain up in the air.

Carbondale station WCIL will broadcast all home games, and campus station WIDB will pick up the play-by-play of Ron Hines on Herrin station WJPF for all road contests while school is in session.

WIDB will not carry broadcasts of the Saluki road games from Dec. 21 (at West Texas State) through Jan. 17 (at Louisiana Tech).

"We have interest from one university account to pay for the hookup," Don Strom, WIDB news director, said Tuesday afternoon. "If our advertising comes through, we don't foresee any problems in just using it."

WCIL, meanwhile, is prepared to handle SIU home games, with Rick Rizz and John Hoscheidt teaming together, but road games are a dim prospect at this time.

"We will definitely carry home games," WCIL station manager Paul McRoy said. "Carrying the road games though, would only be possible if WSIU carries them and we picked their broadcast up."

WSIU has only entered the picture via the rumor road, as station manager Ken Garry admitted.

"I heard Monday that they might approach us about carrying the games," he said, "but I heard from one gentleman who had heard it from another, so who knows? I'm surprised we haven't been approached sooner."

The chances of WSIU taking part lessens considerably, though, now that both home and away games will be covered. The station was not of a mood to pursue the possibility, anyway, since several officials are still harboring hard feelings about losing the play-by-play allocation.

"We have taken a low profile on this subject," Garry said. "We're the recipients now, not the initiators. If they want us to broadcast, they will ask us."

Bowling meet

Mike Martin, with an 18-game average of 189 for last week's Bowling Club rolloff, will lead the cast of SIU bowlers to Vincennes University this weekend to participate in that school's collegiate tournament.

Bowling on the number one men's team along with Martin will be Pat O'Kelley, Ron Haegele, Barney Eisner, and Jim Rybarczyk. On the second team are Bill Bryan, Mike Calabrese, Bob Schrader, Phil Simmons and Mark Hagerly.

Members of the women's team include Pam Kartinos, Ann Spickerman, Laima Lapinskas, Shirleen Weis, and Garlen Holtkamp.

Cagers face toughest schedule ever

Editors Note: This is the first of a two part story in which Daily Egyptian Sports Editor Bruce Shapin takes a close look at the SIU 1974-75 basketball schedule.

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

SIU has played a major college basketball schedule since 1968. This year, SIU will face its toughest opposition ever as it plays 11 of its 26 games against teams that saw post season action last season.

"Without a doubt, this is our toughest schedule ever," head coach Paul Lambert said Tuesday, before his cagers went through an intrasquad game at Benton High School. "I thought last year we had a tough schedule, but no one believed me until the end of the year."

The Salukis open the season Dec. 2 against St. Mary's (Tex.) at the Arena. St. Mary's finished fourth in last year's NAIA small college tourney. The Rattlers will be shooting for their ninth consecutive Big State Conference crown this year.

St. Mary's is lead by 6-5 forward Gary Tomaszewski, a small college all American last year. The Rattlers, who finished the 1973-74 campaign 24-9, have participated in the NAIA tournament seven straight years.

SIU travels to Nashville, Tenn., the weekend of Dec. 6 to take part in the Vanberbilt Classic. The Salukis meet talented Austin Peay in the opening round of the two-day, four team tourney.

Austin Peay has lost the services of Fly Williams, the nation's second leading scorer last season. Williams gave up his last two years of college eligibility to play pro ball with the St. Louis Spirits of the ABA.

Three starters return from last year's 17-10 squad, to give the team an excellent chance of capturing its third straight Ohio Valley Conference crown. Austin Peay lost to Notre Dame in last year's NCAA Midwest regional.

If SIU gets past Austin Peay in the first round of the tourney, they will meet Virginia Tech in the finals.

Vanderbilt returns three starters from last season's Southeastern Conference championship team. Vanderbilt recruited two big freshmen to help them improve on its 23-5, 1973-74 record.

Neil Bomenderr, 6-11, and John Snead, 6-10, should add some rebounding strength to the Vanderbilt squad during the next four years.

Virginia Tech is still rebuilding after its NIT championship two years ago. Only one starter returns from last season's 13-13 squad.

SIU returns home, Dec. 9 to battle Missouri Western. The Griffons have been ranked third in several pre-season small college polls.

Missouri Western reached the quarter finals of the small college tourney last year. Five players 6-7 or taller return from last season highly regarded squad.

Defending Big Ten champion Michigan visits the Arena Dec. 11. Last year, the Salukis lost an 86-74 decision to the Wolverines in the season opener for both squads.

Everyone has returned from last year's 22-5 Big Ten championship team, except Campy Russell. Russell passed up another season with the Wolverines for a pro ball career with the Cleveland Cavaliers of the NBA.

C.J. Kupec, a 6-8 senior from Oak Lawn, leads the Michigan attack. Kupec will be joined by teammate Steve Grote, a 6-2 guard who was considered one of the best defensive freshman in the country last year.

Dec. 16, the Salukis travel to Omaha, Neb. to meet Creighton. The Bluejays handed the Salukis two key defeats last season, 75-60 and 67-64. Only one starter, 6-8 Doug Brookins, returns from last year's 23-7 squad.

Creighton visits Carbondale Mar. 3 for a re-match to close out the regular season for the Salukis. Last season, Creighton placed third in the NCAA Midwest regional.

Before the Christmas holidays, the Salukis play one more game, Dec. 21 against West Texas State. The Buffalos return all five starters from last season's 11-15 squad.

Joe Coese, a 6-4 guard, leads the West Texas attack. Coese averaged 12.8 points per game last season, and was named to the All Missouri Valley Conference squad. West Texas State is considered the most improved team in the Valley this season.

The Salukis will enter its second tourney of the season Dec. 27-28 when they participate in the Indiana State Classic in Terre Haute.

SIU opens the four-team, two-day tourney against Mississippi State on Friday night. Mississippi State's eight top scorer's from last season's 16-10 squad have all returned.

If SIU gets by Mississippi State, the team will meet either Indiana State or Santa Clara in the finals.

The Salukis defeated Indiana State twice last season, 84-79 and 87-69. The Sycamores suffered a 12-14 season last year. Indiana State is lead by 6-8 Rick Williams. Williams averaged 16.8 points per game last season.

Santa Clara returns all 11 players from last season's 9-18 squad. Santa Clara had an excellent recruiting year, signing five California all-state high school players.

Tomorrow: The Saluki schedule gets tougher in 1975.

Rugby team finishes season with big win

By Toby Peters
Student Writer

It was cold and cloudy to most people last Saturday in Carbondale, but things couldn't have been much brighter for the SIU Rugby Salukis as they finished their season with an 8-4-1 mark by defeating the Evansville (Ind.) Rugby Club 24-9.

Jim "Stir-it-up" Clapsaddle was high point man for SIU, scoring three tries for 12 points. Kevin Conway assisted Clapsaddle on one of those three tries and added a try for SIU himself. Harry Yaseen also added four points upon out-hustling the Evansville forwards to the endzone. Ed Willi was two for five on the point - after attempts putting an additional four points to the Saluki scorebook totaling SIU's 24 points.

Evansville's points came from a three point penalty kick and a try early in the second half with the point after try successful.

Evansville was the first to score from the penalty kick, but it was not long before the SIU Rugger's tallied 16 points against Evansville before the visitors scored again. Evansville's try seemed to do nothing but spark SIU as they then quickly added 8 points to their score.

In the "B" game against Evansville the visiting team took the victory 16-10. Jim Elderton scored six of the Saluki's 10 with two successful penalty kicks. Jerry Mourning added 4 points for the Saluki B team with a second half score.

Evansville's 16 points came from three tries and two successful point after attempts.

Commenting on SIU's final game of the season advisor-coach, Malcolm Walker said, "We clearly outclassed Evansville particularly in loose play and attack." Walker pointed out that Evansville's forwards were heavier and stronger than SIU forwards. "Evansville forwards had the size and strength but SIU forwards were in superior condition. We simply out-hustled them," said Walker.

This season's record of 8-4-1 for the Rugby "A" team marks the finest season the young Rugby Club has ever had. This season the Rugby Club not only compiled an impressive win-loss record but they also placed among the top 15 Rugby Clubs in the Heart of America Rugby Tournament, held in Kansas City Missouri. The Heart of America Rugby Tournament host 40 of the top Rugby teams in the nation.

When asked what could be credited to SIU's best season, many Rugby players agreed that advisor coach Malcolm Walker played a key role in the Saluki success. One Rugger said, "Malcolm (Walker) motivated us throughout the season. Although Mal ran us pretty hard, for some reason practice was more fun with Mal around."

Until this season the Rugby Team was player-coached. Walker, an ex-rugger from Australia, took on the task of advising and coaching the SIU team.

A rugby meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Big Muddy Room of the Student Center. The meeting will discuss the banquet, jersey distribution, and team picture. Guest speaker will be Martin Marr.

Michigan coach put on probation

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler was placed on two years probation for his outburst against Big Ten athletic directors' decision to send Ohio State to the 1973 Rose Bowl, a Detroit newspaper said Monday.

The Detroit Free Press said Schembechler was placed on probation by a special infractions committee composed of conference athletic directors and faculty representatives.

They acted after Schembechler charged that Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke had "engineered" the vote which sent Ohio State to Pasadena following the Buckeyes' 10-10 tie with Michigan in their Big Ten finale.

SIU gymnast Jack Laurie demonstrates the L-cross. Laurie placed first on the still rings at the Indiana Invitational held last weekend.

Strong team effort has Meade feeling optimistic

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A leader yes, but a one-man show no. That's the way the gymnastics season is shaping up for Jim Ivicsek and his SIU teammates.

The stalwart senior added another impressive performance to his record in last weekend's Indiana Invitational, but it was the strong showing of the rest of the team which left Coach Bill Meade optimistic.

"It was a good meet, and I thought we did very well in most performances," he said. "We're much better than that at this point last year, and we didn't even get to see our depth in this meet."

"Depth is one of our strong points, so it's hard to evaluate the team fully at this point."

The depth was missing because each team was only allowed three participants in each event. With four teams—SIU, Indiana, Indiana State and Ball State—that amounted to 12 men per event.

Ivicsek led the Saluki effort with firsts in the vault, parallel bars and high bar and a second in floor exercise. His scores for the four events were 9.35, 9.2, 9.3 and 8.9, respectively.

Jack Laurie won the rings with a 9.3 and tied for third in the parallel bars with an 8.45.

Tony Hanson and Ed Hembd claimed the top two spots in the sidehorse competition.

"I was pretty pleased, except for our backup in the horizontal bars and parallel bars," Meade remarked. "Ivicsek did a good job, although he had a little break on the rings. But he did well all down the line."

Eddie Hembd had a break on the pommel horse, too," he added, "but he still scored an 8.6, which leads me to believe he can score a 9.5 or 9.6."

The Salukis will enter three more invitational during the remainder of the fall semester, before the season begins in late January with the spring semester.

Nov. 29-30, the team will travel to the Midwest Open in Addison, Ill. Laurie reigns as defending champ there.

The following two weekends, the squad will hit the Windy City Invitational in Chicago and the Rocky Mountain Invitational in Aurora, Colo., respectively.

"By then, I should have a good idea who we can use in what situation," Meade remarked.

Beg your pardon

The Central Michigan Chippewas were erroneously referred to as the Wildcats in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian. Northern Michigan is the Wildcats. We apologize for the error.
